

Use Your Own Dashboard

I'd estimate Creator Rewards from qualified views and your reported RPM. Public views do not convert at a fixed percentage, and an assumed rate is not a payout promise.

Account, market, reporting period and currency

Creator Rewards Input	Your Figure
Qualified views for eligible videos
RPM for the same videos and period
Estimate: qualified views / 1,000 x RPM
Final dashboard adjustment, if applicable

Assumed Example

600,000 qualified views / 1,000 x $0.70 RPM = $420. Both inputs are assumed for this example. At the same view count and an assumed $0.40 RPM, the result would be $240.

Keep the Two Counts Separate

Use Creator Rewards analytics for qualified views. A public counter includes views that may not qualify. Check the program rules for eligible videos and unique For You views; short watches, artificial activity and paid or promoted views can be excluded.

Track Each Income Source

Use confirmed balances and contracts. Gifts, Shop commissions, subscriptions and brand work have different terms, fees and release conditions.

Income Source	Confirmed Amount	Pending Amount
Creator Rewards
LIVE rewards available for withdrawal
Shop approved commissions
Subscriptions or Series
Brand invoices due
Total

What I Would Check

[] LIVE: use the cash balance and withdrawal terms shown for your account. Do not assume a universal Diamond-to-cash rate or minimum.

[] Shop: use the actual commission per eligible sale, with returns and cancellations accounted for.

[] Brand work: agree on deliverables, usage rights, payment dates and any exclusivity.

[] Subscriptions or Series: check access, regional terms, fees and the payable balance.

[] Record processing charges, agency fees, production costs and refunds separately.

Expected receipts minus fees and costs, before taxes

Check Eligibility and Payment

Meeting a follower threshold does not automatically enroll your account. I'd confirm access and policy status before adding a program to an income plan.
